Blow Up Hall, located in Poznan (Poland), is one of the most distinctive hotels in Europe. Conceived as a hotel-museum, it blends digital art, interactive installations and a contemporary, avant garde interior design. Each room is unique, created to offer an immersive experience where technology, art and comfort coexist.

In this context, the Big Brother floor lamp, designed by Oriol Llahona for ALMA Light, finds the perfect setting to express its character. Its large scale and sculptural presence resonate with the hotel's experimental and innovative aesthetic.

In this bold project, where the interiors stand out for their strong personality, Big Brother becomes more than a functional object: it turns into part of the hotel's visual language, merging design, light and emotion in a single piece.
