Heidi Gubbins Design Studio in Marbella, Spain, embraces natural simplicity with “Barefoot at a Pied-à-terre,” a sanctuary of ease and intimacy. And in this project, ALMA Light’s FUJI pendants stand out in their own right.

In the bathroom, the presence of FUJI becomes sculptural. Marble surfaces meet dark ribbed timber, creating contrast and depth, while the two ALMA Light alabaster pendant lights introduce suspended moments of softness. Their organic geometry echoes the natural veining of the stone, bringing balance and atmospheric warmth to the space. More than illumination, FUJI shapes the mood – enhancing the interplay of shadow, material, and architectural rhythm.

The project of this apartment unfolds through light, texture, and carefully curated elements that balance architectural clarity with warmth and softness. Each space is conceived as a chapter, where materials converse quietly, and every detail contributes to a refined and harmonious whole.
